Trust Mark The Trust Mark is a seal of endorsement that ensures that ADIA member organisations are compliant with the highest ethical standards, particularly in regard to privacy. It provides buyers of research the assurance that their data is protected. To qualify for the Trust Mark, members adhere to the Industry Code and The Research Society Code of Professional Behaviour, plus hold the International Standard for Market, Opinion and Social Research certification (ISO 20252).

ISO 20252 AS ISO 20252 is the International ISO standard for market, social and opinion research. ISO 20252 covers all the stages of a research study: from the initial contact between the client and service provider, to presentations of results to the client.

ISO 27001 ISO 27001 is the leading international standard focussed on information security that was developed to help organisations, of any size or any industry to protect their information in a systematic and cost-effective way, through the adoption of an Information Security Management System.

Privacy Code Only ADIA Members work under the Privacy (Market and Social Research) Code 2021, Australia's only industry-specific APP Code that provides a customised version of the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs). ADIA is the Code Administrator, and the Australian Information and Privacy Commissioner is the Adjudicator. The Code is available on the OAIC Codes register.
